Story of Christmas Pageant Outlined; To Be Staged Dec. 28

"We Would See Jesus", two act play, will be presented by the Liberty Baptist Church, Sunday evening, Dec. 28, at 7:45 o'clock. The play is written by Louise Shields.

A synposis follows:

Act. 1—Time, night of the Nativity.

Place—Bethlehem.

Pipe Organ prelude.

Quartet—"O Little Town of Bethlehem".

Inkeeper enters congratulating himself on the fact that his inn is filled with the rich, coming from afar. Mary and Joseph seek shelter for the night, but can find no room except in the stable.—"No Room in the Inn", solo by Mrs. Russell Gimbert.

Two shepherd lads meet, greatly excited by the appearance of the strange star and the angelic chorus —"Glory to God in the Highest", by choir. They have brought a little lamb and wild flowers as gifts for the little Christ. As they follow the Star the choir sings—"While Shepherds Watched their Flocks".

King Herod questions his slave as to rumors that a mighty King had been born, but the slave only mutters again and again: "We know no king but Herod." A herald announces the arrival of three kings of the Orient, who seek through God to find the Christ—Male quartet.—"We Three Kings of Orient". The prophet reads from the scroll the prophecy concerning the coming of the Messiah.—Solo, "The Wonderful". Herod accompanies the kings to the outer court bidding them bring him news of the new-born King—(Chorus of small girls representing angels, carrying white flowers, which they scatter about the manger. —"Holy Night, Silent Night".

Act—2 Place—Your Town Time—Christmas, 1930.

Spirit of Truth enters with Bible in hand. A herald brings a message from the Modern Young Woman, who is waiting outside the door, seeking through the Spirit of Truth to see Jesus. The Modern Young Woman is crippled by unbelief and blinded by hate, pride and worldliness. She is being followed steathily by the four sinister figures representing these handicaps.

The Spirit of Truth welcomes the Modern Young Woman and bids her make known the desires of her heart. ("Choir—Hear Our Prayer") The Spirit of Truth perceives that he is crippled by unbelief. As he lays aside the crutch, Unbelief rushes forward in protest. (Solo, "I do Believe)" Then the Spirit of Truth reveals the fact that the Modern Young Woman is blinded by hate, pride and worldliness. As he bandages are removed the three figures protest vehemently, but to no avail—Modern Young Woman sings "Nothing Satisfies but Jesus" —(Choir, "Arise, Shine."

The Modern Young Woman at the bidding of the Spirit of Truth goes out to seek those attributes that would enable her to see Jesus. She returns with four young girls, representing: Faith, Humility, Purity and Love. Faith tells how she may overcome the world. (Choir, "Faith of our Fathers") Humility shows how sublime is service. Sole, "I Come To Thee, Purity is essential if she would see God. (Quartet "Purer in Heart, O God") Love convinces her that it is the greatest of all things. The Spirit of Truth then tells the Modern Young Woman that by faith, humility, purity and love she may see Jesus.

The curtain is raised, revealing the manger scene of long ago. Mary and Joseph bending over the cradle, the kings kneeling, and the shepherd lads with eyes raised adoringly. In a semi-circle kneel the little angels with hands clasped. Before this scene the Modern Young Woman, the Spirit of Truth, Faith, Humility Purity and Love bow. Enter candle-bearers followed by the nations of the earth, waving palm branches, and prostrating themselves before the manger. (Choir "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah).

Tom Christian Recovers Slowly

Tom Christian, who was recently found on the highway near Roanoke unconscious, and severly injured, is doing fairly well, though he is not yet out of danger., Dr. D. A. Christian says.

The latest report that he was stunned by a passing car when he got out to see about some trouble he was having with his own car has been confirmed by Mr. Christian, who is now able to discuss the accident. However, he did not get out of the car because the bumper was dragging, as was first reported, but because he believed he had a flat tire. The motorist, who struck him sveidently did not stop.

Hixburg

Dec. 17—We are all looking forward to the home coming of those off at school.

Mr. Willie Hix is in Richmond this week consulting a specialist.

The people around here were very sorry to hear of Mr. Joel Watkins, of Farmville, being hit by an automobile on last Friday afternoon.

Last Friday some hunters got into a bunch of wild turkeys, near Capt. Covington and after a lot of shooting some of the turkeys were seen to alight in a flat below Toney Joe Cawthorns, one of which appeared to be badly crippled. Mr. Cawthorn's little boy went down to see it and found that both feet of the turkey had been shot off and after an exciting scuffle he caught and carried the turkey home.

We notice quite a lot of mine props being hauled to Pamplin, thus giving employment to some.

Those attending the W. M. U. at Rocks Church from here on last Sunday were Mrs. J. T. Hix, Mrs. E. P. Sears and Mrs. Wilson Hix.

Patt McPhillipps and Mrs. Fannie Marshall, Miss Annie Rosser is spending a few days with Mrs. J. H. McCue.

Miss Virginia Porks and Miss Earline Rosses went to see Lou Covington at S. T. C., Farmville, on last Sunday.

An enjoyable musical was rendered by some of the young people for William Swan, Jr., on last Saturday night.

Now that 1930 is coming to a close before we write again, may the writer extend Christmas greetings and a hearty wish for a happy New Year.

Improvements Are Allowed By Board

Letter Read Stating Book and Library Funds of State Are Exhausted

One half of the cost of repairing the porch of the Oakville school to supplement the half paid by the Oakville Community League was appropriated by the County School Board at the regular monthly meeting last Wednesday morning.

The cost of a cement top and a pump for the well dug by the patrons at the Evergreen School was also allowed by the board. J. A. Burke, county superintendent, gave a report to the board on the annual Virginia Educational Conference, which he attended in Richmond the last of November.

A letter from C. W. Dickerson, state supervisor of text books and libraries, stating that the state board will not be able to appropriate the usual $10 on libraries until after June, 1931 was read.

State library funds up until next June have been exhausted according to the letter. However, if the county advances the $10 in addition to the $10 already paid, the state will re-imburse the county board shortly after next June, Mr. Dickerson stated.

The board acted upon the request and instructed the clerk to accept orders from High schools as usual and to advance the $10 as far as the county budget would permit.

Mrs. Phelps of Oakville Dies

Mrs. Howard Phelps, of Oakville, died Wednesday at her home following a prolonged illness. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Earl D. Lewis, were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Phelps was a member of the Methodist Church. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Burge Moore. She leaves eight children.

Luncheon Given For Mothers

The Home Economics girls of the Appomattox High school under the direction of Miss Cleio Jones, gave Mother and Daughter luncheon Wednesday noon at the cottage. Prof. L. Crawley was a guest of honor.

Appomattox Ideal Site for Airport Aviator States

Ben F. Seagle president and chief pilot of the Seagle Flying Service of Hickory, N. C., who landed late Wednesday afternoon in a pasture near the courthouse, described Appomattox in an interview as an ideal location for an airport.

Mr. Seagle stated that there is a very definite need for an airport in this section, and that Appomattox, being near the mountains and yet level country, would make an excellent port.

Establishing an airport here would necessitate only the smallest expenditure, he said. He also spoke of the preference fliers have for the small town port since the ship may be conveniently near the town.

Mr. Seagle and his mechanic, C. F. Owens, were flying from Atlanta to Charlottesville. Finding they could not reach Charlottesville that night they landed here before dark. Both men commented on the courtesy and hospitality of the Appomattox people.

Forest View

Dec. 17—Miss Sally Layne, a former resident of the north side of Appomattox, died last Friday at the home of her nephew, T. H. Layne, of Eastern Shore, and was buried Sunday. Miss Layne left the county a few years ago to live with her nephew.

Mr. Ellis Martin visited his aunt, Mrs. E. G. Cheatham, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Martin visited in the home of A. S. Woolridge last Sunday.

The weather has turned much colder, getting ready for the Christmas Holidays.

Mrs. Erna Evans, of Lynchburg, visited her grandfather, T. J. Nash, last week-end.

Mr. Charlie Nash was also a visitor to his grandfather on Sunday.

Mr. Milton Martin and daughters, Mrs. Willie Belle Lewis, of Eastern Shore, Va., are visiting in the home of his father, R. W. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Sims and two children, of Lynchburg, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lee, of Wesley Chapel, also visited in this home last Sunday.

Miss Lucille Cox has been visiting at Madisonville.

Christmas Goes Modern

More than 1,000 of these futuristic Christmas trees have been set out on Hollywood Boulevard in the film capital.

Rummage Sale Is Held Daily Now

From now until Christmas eve the rummage department of the Charity Emporium at the old home of Miss Lelia Inge will be open every day except Sunday.

Mrs. T. S. McFadden will be in charge every day except Saturday when all department will be open with the regular committees in charge. Many useful garments, new and second hand, in all sizes and for all ages may be had at a small cost, Rev W. M. Thompson states.

Mrs. J. F. Harvey, who has charge of the dining room at the Emporium, cleared $20 last Saturday. A total of $40 was cleared in all departments that day.

Novel Christmas presents, a complete line of cosmetics, and flavoring extracts are being sold in the bazaar department of the Emporium. Cakes, pies and candies, baked by the women of the churches are sold in the bakery section. Next Wednesday will be the last day the Emporium is open.

Food provisions, and a stove pipe were sent by the Associated Charities to one needy family in the county Wednesday. Preparations have been made to take care of others. Applications have been received from five or six families for groceries and clothing for children of all ages. Those who wish to give Christmas donations to provide for the Christmas of any of these families are asked to leave them with Miss Emma Smith.

Christmas Services Planned For Circuit

White Christmas services on the Appomattox circuit will be held by the pastor, the Rev. Earl I. Lewis, at Trinity church Christmas night, at 7 o'clock and at Bethel Church on the Sunday afternoon following Christmas.

A service will be held at Herman this coming Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, the pastor taking "The Good Tidings" as the subject of his sermon. A service will be held at Mt. Comfort that afternoon at 3 o'clock with the pastor preaching no "The Star in the East".

PAMPLIN

The teachers of the Pamplin High School will entertain their pupils at a social next Friday afternoon. The Pamplin school will close for the Holidays Friday noon.

Mrs. J. D. Siezemore entertained at a dinner party a week ago Tuesday evening, her guests being the faculty of Pamplin High School, also Mrs. Dora Booker and W. B. Rice.

Dr. C. H. McCall, Rev. H. L. Reeves, N. E. Farrar, L. N. Ligon and Edward Blackburg attended a Masonic meeting in Appomattox Thursday night.

Mrs. L. N. Ligon had as her guest recently her sister, Mrs. Rawls, of Franklin.

FIRE AT WOOLFOLK'S DOES LITTLE DAMAGE

The fire engine was called to the W. F. Woolfolk home Wednesday morning about nine o'clock to put out a fire, which started when the stove turned over spilling red hot coals on the floor. Little damage was done except to the linoleum rug which was badly burned.

Committee On Illiteracy Named

J. A. Burke Heads County Group; To Co-Operate With State

A county illiteracy committee headed by J. A. Burke has recently been appointed by Dr. Charles G. Maphis, of the University of Virginia, chairman of the state illiteracy committee, and a meeting to formulate plans for a campaign against illiteracy in the county will be held early in January, Mr. Burke has announced.

Local committees on illiteracy are being appointed in every county in Virginia to work with the state and National advisory committees. Members in this county who will work with Mr. Burke are: L. Crawley, C. W. Smith, Rev. W. M. Thompson, Rev. G. D. Coffey, S. L. Ferguson, Don Moses, T. J. Ligon, Mrs. S. E. Anderson and J. R. Horsley.

The first problem before this committee is to discover who the adult illiterates of the county are. Mr. Burke has estimated that there are about 300 in Appomattox county at the present time.

As soon as sufficient information has been obtained, schools will probably be organized in the communities where there are a sufficient number of illiterates to justify them. Some effort was made last year to conduct an illiteracy campaign on a purely voluntary basis.

Statistics on illiteracy, based on the census of 1920, place Virginia fortieth from the top in total percentage of illiterates and forty-first in the percentage of illiterate native whites. The total for this state was more than the combined illiteracy of Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota and Wyoming. Although the illiteracy is largely rural, there were 7,931 illiterates in Richmond, and 458 in Charlottesville, the site of the University of Virginia.

Teachers and residents of counties throughout the state are pledging forty-eight hours of service during the school year for work on the problem of illiteracy.

Members of the state committee besides Dr. Maphis are: Miss Cornelia Adair, past president of the National Education Association; Miss Ruth Henderson, former member of the Virginia House of Delegates; Mrs. L. T. Jester, member of the school board, Newport News; James Hurst, Division superintendent of schools of Norfolk; John C. Myers, Division superintendent of schools of Rockingham County, and C. J. Heatwole, executive secretary of the Virginia Education Association. State superintendent Harris Hart is a member ex-officio.

State News

With a bill calling for $60,000,000 appropriation for drought-stricken farmers pending in Congress, and favorable prospects for the passage, the drought-stricken agriculturists of Virginia may look forward to a certain degree of relief in the not distant future. President Hoover recommended a total fund of $25,000,000, but Congress raised the ante to $60,000,000.

The monthly allotment of State gasoline tax receipts to Lee County is being withheld by State Comptroller, E. R. Combs, pending settlement by that county of the equable over its treasurership. Treasurer J. M. Weston, suspended by Governor Pollard because of an alleged shortage in his accounts of over $90,000,000, refuses to turn the tax tickets over to C. D. Fugate, whom the executive named to succeed him.

Attorney-General John R. Saunders, acting at the instigation of the Governor, has requested Commonwealth's Attorney E. E. Skaggs of Lee County to seek an injunction restraining Weston from collecting taxes and a mandamus to compel him to turn his tax tickets over to Fugate.

Tourists traffic in Eastern Virginia declined 20 per cent over 1929 and 7½ per cent in the Shenandoah Valley, according to figures compiled by the Virginia State Chamber of Comber of Commerce from the records of historic shrines. General business depression was assigned as the cause of the drop.

The labor unions at Danville are planning to provide shelter for the families of the 47 strikers who were evicted recently from the houses of the mill in that city. They had been occupying the company's houses for more than two months, although during that period they were not working for the company.

The Shenandoah Manufacturing Company of Harrisonburg has been asked by Soviet Russia if it will consider a contract to erect the largest poultry hatching, killing and shipping plant in the world near Moscow, the capital of Russia. The Virginia concern did not announce its decision. It has already installed six hot water breeding systems in Russia.

The Rev Frank Garrett Scott 82, one of the most prominent Episcopal ministers in Virginia, died in Petersburg. He had been rector of churches in Gordonsville Petersburg and Smithfield. Subsequently, he was elected a member of the faculty and vice-principal of the Bishop Payne Divinity School at Petersburg. He retired about four years ago.

Following three years of intensive research in this country and Europe, the Rockfeller organization which is restoring Williamsburg to its eighteenth century state, announces that it is ready to go ahead with the restoration of the Colonial Capital of Virginia there. The building burned many years ago, and only the foundations remain.

Harry F. Burd, chairman of the State Drought Relief Committee, has announced appointment of a central committee on unemployment relief, to work with the drought relief body. It is a large committee, and includes educators civic workers, State officials, industrialists, clergyment, and labor leaders.

Many of the troops called out to quell disorder in the Danville textile strike have been withdrawn. Since the gaurdmen arrived, there has been little or no disorder, and the authorities feel that it is not necessary to have an entire regiment on hand.

Former Governor Byrd appeared in Washington last week before a Congressional committee on behalf of the bill appropriating $60,000,000 for loans to drought-stricken farmers. He stated that there are about 15,000 Virginia farmers who are ordinarily good credit risks, but who are now unable to secure credit from local sources, and that they will need about $5,000,000.

John T. Lewis, former member of the Virginia General Assembly and one time United States vice-consul-general to Brazil, died last week. He served in the Legislature in 1912 and 1913, and later established his home near Ashland, at Gwathmey, Hanover County. In recent years he had been interested in brokerage and contracting firms in Richmond.

Charles Keck, of New York, sculptor of the famous statue of Stonewall Jackson at Charlottesville, will design the new Virginia seal, adopted by the 1930 Assembly. The new seal will not differ greatly from the old one, but several designs have been used in the past, and it is hoped to secure uniformity and increased beauty with the new design.
